
DSWD DROMIC Report #7 on the Effects of El Niño as of 21 March 2024, 6PM

I. Situation Overview

On 04 July 2023, climate monitoring and analyses indicated that the unusual warming of sea surface temperatures along the equatorial Pacific that was established in March 2023 further developed into a weak El Niño, and showed signs of strengthening in the following months. On 03 August 2023, warmer than average sea surface temperature anomalies across most of the central and eastern equatorial Pacific signified that a weak El Niño was present. On 05 September 2023, an increased positive sea surface temperature anomaly (SSTA) was observed across the tropical Pacific, indicating a moderate El Niño. On 05 October 2023, the tropical Pacific still shows warmer-than-normal sea surface temperatures signifying a moderate El Niño. On 07 November 2023, reports signify that a moderate-to-strong El Niño was present in the tropical Pacific. On 06 December 2023, a strong El Niño was reportedly present in the tropical Pacific. On 05 January 2024, strong El Niño was still reportedly present and was expected to continue through January-February 2024. On 06 February 2024, reports indicated that the strong and mature El Niño was expected to continue through February 2024.

As of 07 March 2024, El Niño across the tropical Pacific Ocean shows signs of weakening and is expected to persist until March-April-May (MAM) 2024 season. Majority of climate models suggest a transition to ENSO-neutral conditions during the April-May-June (AMJ) 2024 season (79% chance). However, there is a likelihood for La Niña to develop (55% chance) during the June-July-August (JJA) 2024 season. With this development, the PAGASA El Niño Southern Oscillation (ENSO) Alert and Warning System is now raised to La Niña Watch.

On 18 December 2023, the provinces of Zamboanga del Norte, Zamboanga del Sur, and Zamboanga City started to experience dry condition due to the Effects of El Niño, which resulted in damages in agriculture as well as water shortage in various areas.

On 23 February 2024, prevalent dry conditions were reported in the Municipality of Dumarao in Capiz. On March 8, 2024, the Municipality of Barotac Viejo in Iloilo also reported damaged crops and agricultural lands, and affected livestock due to dry conditions.

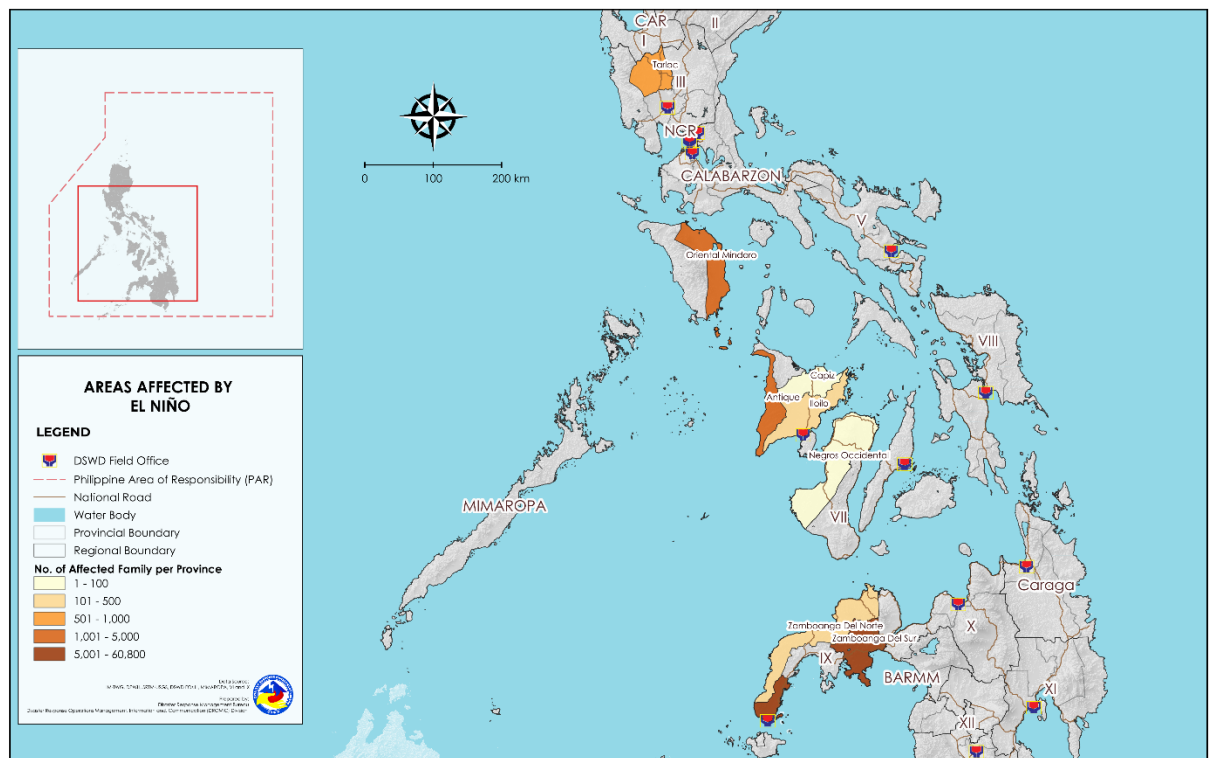

In MIMAROPA, two (2) local government units (LGUs) in Oriental Mindoro have already declared State of Calamity (SoC) due to the effects of severe drought: the Municipality of Bulalacao on 27 February 2024 and the Municipality of Mansalay on 07 March 2024. The absence of rainfall, leading to dwindling water sources, has posed a significant challenge to farmers in irrigating their crops such as rice, onions, and vegetables.

On February 2024, the Municipality of Capas, Tarlac reported that the livelihood of farmers, mostly from IPs (Indigenous Peoples) families, have been damaged due to the effects of the El Niño.
