TRACK AND INTENSITY OUTLOOK

- After making landfall in the vicinity of Dipaculao, Aurora at 3:20 PM today, PEPITO will cross the northern portion of Central Luzon and the southern portion of Northern Luzon via the upland regions of the Sierra Madre, Caraballo, and Cordillera Central between this afternoon and evening. PEPITO is forecast to exit the landmass of Luzon tonight or tomorrow early morning (18 November). During this period, PEPITO will significantly weaken due to land interaction.
- Over the West Philippine Sea, PEPITO will continue moving generally west northwestward tomorrow. It may exit the PAR region tomorrow morning or noon. Outside the PAR region, the tropical cyclone will turn more westward or west southwestward on Tuesday (19 November) under the influence of an incoming northeasterly wind surge. Further weakening will also occur as PEPITO moves over the West Philippine Sea due to the same surge creating unfavorable environment.
- It must be emphasized that heavy rainfall, severe winds, and storm surge may still be experienced in localities outside the landfall point and the forecast confidence cone. Refer to “Other Hazards affecting Land Areas” for more details. Furthermore, the track may still shift within the limit of the forecast confidence cone.

The center of the eye was estimated based on all available data including from Baler Weather Radar in the vicinity of Nagtipunan, Quirino (16.1 °N, 121.5 °E) moving Northwestward at 25 km/h with a maximum sustained winds of 185 km/h near the center and gustiness of up to 305 km/h.
